EXT. NEW YORK STREET - NIGHT

JEREMY

Hey!

They hug for a long time.

CARRIE

You look great.

JEREMY

Well, I knew you looked great because I saw you on your book, but...gotta say, even better in person.

CARRIE

I'm so glad you called.

JEREMY

I'm spending the month in Connecticut, so I had to look you up.

CARRIE

How are you? I heard you were married to someone you met in business school.

JEREMY

Yeah. We definitely miscalculated that one. Got divorced a couple years ago. So I'm on my own again.

CARRIE

(That never occurred to her) Oh.

JEREMY

What about you? Seeing anybody?

CARRIE

Nope. Wide open.

JEREMY

How is that possible?

CARRIE
My high school boyfriend spoiled me for life.

JEREMY
Right, me and my AMC Pacer.

CARRIE
Oh, the Pacer...

JEREMY
Hey, I put our names down for a table, but you mentioned you might have dinner plans. Was that in case
I turned out to be a --

He makes an "L" on his forehead like thye used to in high school. Carrie laughs, guilty as charged.

CARRIE
Maybe... But my fictional plans fell through, so I think I'm available.

They are clearly having a great time. They walk close together, arms almost touching.

CARRIE (CONT'D)
Hey, I didn't even ask what you were doing in Connecticut.

JEREMY
Nothing...for a change. I've been working my ass off in Denver for the past decade, so I decided to take a month off...spend some time at sea level. I've been out in the country, just relaxing, sorting through some things...

CARRIE
Sometimes you need to get away.

JEREMY
And sometimes you wonder why you stayed away so long.

He gives her a little nudge. She nudges back.

CARRIE
Well, this is my place.

JEREMY
Nice building.

CARRIE
Yeah, I love it here.

There is definite sexual tension - both want to kiss.

JEREMY
I feel like I want to kiss you, but I'm not sure what...

CARRIE
I know! It's very unclear.

JEREMY
This isn't a first date. We've already dated.

CARRIE
And we've kissed.

JEREMY
Many times.

CARRIE Hours.

JEREMY
We were in a lip lock for most of 1982.

CARRIE
So what's one more kiss?
